

What the Holy Grail Means to Me

The Holy Grail means for me that I Am the chalice for the light of God that always prevails, however that light is required and emanating, given my karma, dharma and current circumstances in time and space. The actual Holy Grail is the chalice of light characterized by the flow of light from one's own Solar Presence, Holy Christ Buddha Self, all 12 major chakras and the 144 minor chakras and one's every atom, cell and electrons emanating out to all of life. It would also include the receiving of gifts and graces from anyone who serves the Universal White Brotherhood.

The concept of the Holy Grail began with Jesus, his wife, Mary Magdalene and their descendants. It is referred to as the Holy Bloodline. It continued through the Merovingian (Vine of Mary) kings, as well as King Arthur, who is considered to be a "bloodline" descendant. The quests he sent his knights on were actually exercises in finding the Grail inside oneself.

Information I have gleaned by reading several books by William F. Mann, an archivist for The Knights Templar of Canada (yes, they're still around!), he indicates that part of the mission of the Knights Templar is the protection of the descendants of this same Holy Bloodline.

Kathleen McGowan, in several novels, outlines the lore of the Holy Bloodline as kept by the Cathars (they didn't disappear either!). Her novels are historical fiction based on fact, to protect her sources. In the novel "The Expected One," her protagonist, Maureen Pascal (actually Kathleen McGowan), finds some scrolls hidden in jars that she is inwardly guided to in southern France. The scrolls are written by Mary Magdalene in Greek and are her personal testament.

The Holy Grail is me on my spiritual path!

- KS, Meru University Student